

A Different Format....Just for Today

Written by Susan Hollingshead
Saturday, 09 June 2007 10:06

Due to our extra early morning yesterday, by the time the day came to a close we were exhausted and we were in bed sleeping by 9:00 PM. We woke up to another sunny day and would have loved to go for a motorcycle ride but because our bike insurance has lapsed (as of Friday), it is tucked away in the trailer where it will remain until we get to BC. We had expected to be in our new home province by now and it just wasn't worth the hassle to renew the insurance in Ontario (it is insured separately from the Moho, trailer and car). Instead we watched enviously while almost two hundred bikes whizzed by apparently on a fundraising cruise early this afternoon.

Rather than take up page space writing, today I want to use the area to share a couple of pictures Karley sent me this afternoon. She took Makai to see a Hi-5 concert yesterday and this is him evidently pretty happy to be there and his sister Monet, the ham, is just plain happy!

A Different Format....Just for Today

Written by Susan Hollingshead
Saturday, 09 June 2007 10:06

