

Into Thin Air!!

Written by Susan Hollingshead
Monday, 27 August 2007 14:28

Tonight I went looking for my entries from April 7, 2007 to date and every entry has vanished from the site. I have looked everywhere but as of this writing cannot find a thing. I have sent off an email to Steve, my web dude and hopefully he'll have some answers for me in the morning. For now I have created a new category to place this in. Sorry folks!

This afternoon we drove to the Vancouver International Airport to pick up Helen who was arriving on a 3:30 flight from Toronto. I have to say, though I'm not crazy about the location of the airport, (Richmond) the airport itself is very user friendly and makes picking up visitors a pleasant task. Helen emerged from the elevator shortly after her plane touched down and was all smiles as usual. It's lovely to have her here for a visit, albeit only for eight days, but we are looking forward to spending some quality time together.

Into Thin Air!!

Written by Susan Hollingshead
Monday, 27 August 2007 14:28

We arrived in Mission about two hours later (rush hour traffic) and were greeted soon after by Makai (already a charmer) who presented his Great-Grandma with a freshly picked pansy. Monet who has never met Great-Grandma was a little shy but for Helen it was love at first sight. Tonight Helen had an early night by BC standards (9:00 PM) but has done well for an Ontario gal after a five hour flight and a very early morning! Tomorrow she'll have some "chilling" time and no question a time to bond with her two great grandchildren!