

The Power of the Angels

Written by Susan Hollingshead
Wednesday, 09 July 2003 00:00

When we first reserved our site at the KOA , I had spoken to Amy and Tony, the owners about possibly working there, fulltime or part-time to learn the campground process. I had thought that it might be a good way to earn some money on the road in other campgrounds and the training would be good for me. Though I had lots of experience running a resort and a B & B, this would be a new learning curve for me. Amy said she had done their hiring but thought that they would be able to use my help.

After working a couple of mornings with Amy, I realized that I couldn't possibly do it along with running the B & B, continuing to dispose of our assets and studying and learning about the spiritual growth that was taking place in me. I dreaded the thought of having to tell them I had changed my mind, not wanting to let them down. As I was driving up the driveway to the house late that afternoon, I said "I wish I could get out of working at the KOA". That evening when I stopped in at the office, Amy came to me with a sombre face. She said that because business was a little slower than norm, she didn't think they would need the additional help! This is just one of so many requests or prayers that I have made that have been answered.

The one message I kept receiving was to believe in myself, believe in the angels (they are always here) and to trust that I was hearing them. I had no idea how difficult that would be, but I knew in time with practice I could accomplish it.